Here is an example where you can see the server is setup using the template you created. Now that you have a server set up, you can access it and start using it. First, create a new user account that you will use to access the server. Open up the Client web interface and click the Users icon. Create a new user account and make note of the Access Token for the user account. You will need the Access Token when setting up the server later. Create a server Now that you have a user account you can use to access the server, you can create a new server. Open up the Client web interface and click on the "Create Server" icon. Create a new server As you can see from the screenshot above, you have a few options. One option is to use a template that you have already setup. This is where you would use the template you created earlier. To get started click the "I Have a Template" button. For example, if you used the GM-Nodes template you would create a new server with the same user account, and select the GM-Nodes template. When you select the template, you will see a list of template and template images. In this example I have the GM-Nodes template configured with the default image. Selecting the template will take you to a new page where you can fill in some details about your server. You will need to configure the server that you want to run. First, choose a name for your server. This name will be the name that will be displayed in the web interface to your server, so choose something that will be easy to remember. Now it is time to choose a location where you want your server to be. The default location is the "Projects" folder where 2d92ce491b
