25. Modifying a Style Sheet. In addition, WebSphere Application Server enables you to . Inés De Ceglia - FiraGent - Probably best known for her work on the POSIX shell. She is also a member of the Google Open Source Programs Group. FiraGent - I would define my role at Gimp in terms of a collection of developer tools that help build and maintain GIMP. I try to make the best tools in the right place, and make sure that there are a good number of them. I can be just as happy and productive as an individual contributor as I can be as a member of a developer team. Laura Gómez - I'm a GIMP developer from Argentina. I do a wide variety of things (visual design, web design, desktop publishing, image processing, print, video editing, and even game design and programming) and I just love to learn and try new things. I'm also a musician, graphic designer and web developer. Richard Harvey - I am the current main developer of XSV in the GIMP environment. I am a native Norwegian Linux user who happened to download GIMP for the first time in 2003 and has been using it ever since. My design background gives me a feel for visual design and I found GIMP 2.0 to be right up my street. I will try to push forward and make improvements to the existing script programming interface and will try to enhance GIMP usability in the ways of automation and scripting, while avoiding GIMP UI changes. Stefan Domanček - I started contributing to GIMP in 2012, mostly fixing the "GNU Image

Manipulation Package" in the Debian repositories and updating the Website and the Wiki. I do not plan to change the "GNU Image Manipulation Package" in any drastic way. Stefan Braun - I am a GIMP developer and
