Gov't to allocate N50bn for SARS NIA investigations – Minister The government is committed to investigating the numerous allegations levelled against former president Emmerson Mnangagwa and his entourage by the former intelligence chief. The minister of Home Affairs Michael Masonda Moyo yesterday reported to parliament that the government will allocate N50bn for the establishment of a non-governmental organisation (NGO) to aid in the investigations. He said investigations would be conducted on a country-by-country basis, taking into account the nature of the allegations and making sure that no matters pertaining to the legality of the investigation are jeopardised or the investigation was not compromised. "We should ensure that no matter which government is in power, the ongoing investigations should not be compromised. Therefore, in line with best practices adopted in other jurisdictions, we intend to establish a non-governmental organisation that will assist in our investigations," he said. Moyo said the NGO would be set up by the end of October this year. He further noted that the ministry had in recent times had the said investigations undertaken on a country-by-country basis. "With the new government, an independent constitutional body was established to conduct investigations on matters relating to former President HGH Mugabe and his entourage. These investigations are still ongoing and no conclusions have yet been reached," he said. "However, as Cabinet Ministers, we expect you to advise the President that the investigations are too many and complex to be investigated independently and therefore the best way forward is to allow for an expert to assist the investigative process. "Our investigations will be carried out independently and we should ensure that in no way they become compromised," he added. Moyo explained that some of the investigations which require an expert include the illegal procurement of arms and ammunition, the list of counterfeit money with serial numbers, and the trafficking of goods and oil. He said that a parallel investigation would also be undertaken to investigate the 200 or so former politicians and government officials who were allegedly part of the GNU. "We are of the view that if it was you and your colleagues, and in the absence of any evidence that you are innocent, what is stopping us from investigating the other 200 people?"Q: JQuery: Toggle content of list with classname I have three list items that when clicked should

The former chief executive of Chubb Insurance, which bears its name after the mythical monster the company created, died on Thursday of apparent suicide. John P. Carter, 54, was found dead in his Florida home on Thursday, according to Reuters, the Associated Press and NBC News. It was not immediately clear whether the death was a suicide or a crime. There were no signs of a crime, a sheriff told The New York Times. The company said Mr. Carter, who resigned from his post in 2015, died of an apparent self-inflicted gun wound at a vacant house he owned in west Palm Beach. "Our thoughts and prayers are with the family and loved ones of John Carter at this difficult time," the company said in a statement. "Please rest assured that we have taken all measures to further protect our employees and their families."A STUDENT has vowed to challenge his university's decision to cancel the scheduled screening of a James Cameron epic, claiming it was just an excuse to cover up an ongoing sexual assault issue. Federal Education Minister Simon Birmingham has ordered the re-running of the only screen of Avatar in his electorate, following censorship threats from the university over content deemed "vulgar". The rest of the world is set to experience the 3D sequel, with Australia to be the last state to screen the event. But students at James Cook University say the entire event is a moot point without the screening of the acclaimed film. "They said they had to censor it, not that they were actually doing so," a student said. "The university said they couldn't screen the film because it would be too vulgar." But the student and members of the University of Queensland Union who helped organise the showing were denied a screening. They plan to launch a petition demanding the screening be made up to include all students. Another student, Michael Davidson, said the screening was cancelled because "with all the state wide attention on the G20, I thought it was a good time to cancel it". "We are comfortable with the decision that the university made and we are comfortable with the way they handled the censorship situation," he said. "But we are also frustrated that our right to freedom of speech has been so limited." Mr Davidson said he did not feel for the student who was charged with sexual assault despite not being found guilty of the offence in a trial. "
