We prefer an English first name, but we also accept a first name in your mother tongue.6 comments: Very nice, very nice! I love the colours and the background, with the super cute cushion at the side, very lovely. It is amazing how the door stays the same over the years, I think I am going to have to go back through some of the photos of our house from when we lived there and see if I can find any clues...I'll have to look it up at the library, they are closing down soon... I need to go and get some books, how long has it been? I'm so glad you like it, the colours are very good! I'm sure you'll find lots of lovely things at the library, just search online. I think we've found quite a few things there and I'm sure there are lots more at other libraries. It's still early days but we've found loads of things at the library already, it's nice to be able to go home with books and magazines. Sic, yes, I made it. It's a bit tricky with the fabric, it's very hard and you need to pull it along, if I get the clothes the other way round it would take me ages. I've got a sewing machine at home but the thread is the devil!

Lecture: Translating and interpreting in emergency situations Extracts from the original audio book: In this excerpt, a group of nurses and paramedics are making an urgent round of the hospital. They are responding to a call from a lady who has just had a stroke. They are aware that the ambulance that is coming to take her to hospital is not going to be there in time. They are able to communicate effectively with this patient and start assessing her condition. They communicate the urgency of the situation with the doctors when they arrive and tell the nurses how they are going to approach the patient's head and start the process of inserting the tube into her throat. Presentation of the book2-IT (Italian-English) audio book. Lecture: Differences between first and second language Extracts from the original audio book: In this extract, a young Italian woman is preparing to go to university to study medicine. She begins to do an exam in her native tongue, Italian. While it may seem to be a very different language to the one that she has studied for all her life, it is actually very similar to Italian. This is because it is descended from the Latin language. But in Italian the different tenses of the verb are 80eaf3ba8
