So, yes, I do think that Iran is directly responsible for this trend and an Iranian influence is on the rise in Iraq. In Israel, in Lebanon, in Afghanistan, in Syria, in Saudi Arabia, in Egypt... The Shia are everywhere, more than ever before. We're seeing the rise of the Shia across the Middle East. So, in retrospect, do you think the Shia have been successful in their push to increase power across the Middle East in the past 20 or 30 years? The Shia were successful everywhere they tried. I know that's an unpopular statement. It comes as a shocker to people – these are the “good guys” that we see on TV, that we see in the movies... yes, they have been successful everywhere in the Middle East. They have succeeded in Egypt. They've succeeded in Iraq. They've succeeded in Bahrain. And I hope that I'm proven wrong when I say that they have also succeeded in Syria, in Yemen, in Lebanon and even in Israel. I think they've succeeded
