Show moreGrowth of Pisum sativum L. in the African desert and mid-elevation region of central Kenya, a suitable model for arid land. Growth of Pisum sativum L. was studied in the arid mid-elevation region of central Kenya during the growing seasons of the years 2002-2004. The plant showed significant growth traits which could be characterized as tolerant and productive. The plants were to be planted in large numbers in Africa where production of fodder is limited. The yield of this crop in the region is relatively high and also in this environment. Seedlings transplanted at the beginning of the year flowered better than those transplanted at the end of the year. Yield per plant is higher when transplanted early in the growing season.Q: how to make sybase db access program in c? I'm new to c and db programming. I want to access sybase db in c.
