The virus enters your computer through an infected email attachment, a fake internet website, an infected USB thumb drive, a fake CD-ROM, or another USB device. When the virus enters your computer, it installs itself and places itself in your Windows registry. The virus then checks the integrity of the registry on your computer. If the registry is not intact, it will produce a system error and then shut down the computer. Once the virus is loaded into your computer, it will scan your computer for specific programs. It will also start an external program named "Linux Check&

General: Introduction: Topman's Monopoly is a board game of British social history. The game is designed to teach players about British economic history, the forces of change and the results of over a hundred years of industrialisation. While the game can be played in half an hour, the strategy involved can be summed up as "Get rich or die trying" - take the London trade from others or invest in roads, railways and industry to build your own empire.The object of the game is to own the largest number of properties in the United Kingdom - not only
