Show that u is harmonic if and only if $\Delta u=0$. I've considered this problem and I found a paper that gave an answer. But I'm having difficulty seeing how to show this. Here is the paper: A: Suppose u is harmonic. We want to show $u\equiv 0$ in the domain. By the maximum principle we may assume u attains a local maximum on the boundary $\partial B(0,r)$, $r>0$. Let $v\equiv u$ on $B(0,r)$ and 0 outside, so that v is harmonic in $B(0,r)$ 1a22cd4221
