Description: Due to the fact that the majority of the internet is accessed via browsers, the ones that play a significant part in the development of the web are browsers, which are developed and released as updates of the browsers that come installed with Windows. There are a number of browsers, both built-in and installed ones, that are available for use on your desktop computer, but in most cases, it is only logical to choose the browser that is already pre-installed on your computer, as this also offers you a familiar interface and allows you to use it with less hassle. The current version of Internet Explorer comes pre-installed with all editions of Windows 7, 8, 10 and Windows Server 2008. It is also possible to download different browsers that offer more functionality than Internet Explorer, but in most cases, you may want to stick to the browser that comes with the operating system. This is what you may want to do if you are the type of user who does not like to change browsers and see that certain functionality is not available in your current browser. If you are not sure, you may want to make sure that you download and install a newer version of the browser that comes pre-installed with your computer. This is especially important if you plan to access online banking, as these sites often require the use of specific security features. Here are some of the advantages that come with having the Internet Explorer browser that is pre-installed on your computer. • Compatibility: Internet Explorer is pre-installed in almost all editions of Windows, which means that it
