I am trying to make a very simple ball game where a player can run in any direction and rotate left and right to jump. However, in order for the player to jump, they have to be moving in a certain direction. I am not able to get the ball to rotate in place when I add in the jump. I think the problem may be that I am adding an event listener in the wrong place. Here is my full code: public class Ball extends JPanel implements Runnable{ private BufferedImage ball; private static final int width 1a22cd4221
