

EditThisCookie is a convenient, fast, and easy solution for those who need a free cookie manager. The plug-in can be installed by both Chrome and Opera users, and offers great flexibility for cookie handling. Efficiently manage, create, or block cookies With this extension, you can have the same features available in Opera and in Chrome. Upon installing the extension, you can start using the service right away. It is free, open-source, and does not require any registration. Its simplicity makes EditThisCookie user-friendly and suitable for diverse use cases. On any web page, you can click the cookie icon (it gets added to the toolbar). The add-on's dropdown will display all cookies from the current page, including their contents. You can add, delete, edit existing cookies, or create new ones, for testing purposes, for example. Moreover, if you are concerned about online privacy, you can filter and block any third-party cookies. Instruments for developers, testers, and technical users EditThisCookie is suitable for all types of users. For example, you can create your own cookies, import existing ones (in JSON format only), or export cookies from any web page. The export option is a little more flexible as it allows users to output data in multiple formats: JSON, Netscape HTTP cookie file, Perl::LWP, or in name-value pairs, separated by a semicolon. You can override the maximum age for any cookie, automatically reload the pages after submitting any cookie changes, or use the 'Protect a Cookie' function. One can protect a cookie by clicking the button "Set as read-only". This action allows for preserving the cookie's original value so that the website can no longer change it. Conclusion All in all, EditThisCookie is an excellent choice for anyone. If you are a regular, non-technical user, it is helpful to understand how the Internet works, how your data is stored and used, and how you can boost your privacy. Read more about it here. If you are a technical person, the extension will enable access to plenty of useful features for your technical needs and requirements.
