You can do this by dragging the sorted folders over the app, or by right-clicking a file and selecting the sort option from the context menu. If I do this: file 1.xls But then in my code I do this: FILE_1.xls And it's the wrong file. I need to be able to export a file with a variable in it's name but don't want to come up with different variable names for each output file. A: One way to accomplish this is to use the shell to handle the file name expansion: var=$(printf '%s ' "FILE_" 1 2) file="$var.xls" Assuming that the file to export is named FILE_1.xls and the 1st argument to the shell is 2 (which represents the second file to be exported), this will generate the file name FILE_1.xls.
