The above .7z files seems to be the shared object/library itself not a header (.h). I've searched and could not find any relevant information. To do this properly I think I need to extract the shared library to other folders. I've tried some but still could not find an original. Is there anyone who know how to decompress this? Thanks A: The malware and virus is the Realtek RT55347 Receiver and the Shared lib is an dll. I could decompress it to a folder by: `unzip -d "RT55347" "ACRONIS"` And get the right.h and.a files with: `unzip -d "ACRONIS" "header.h" "library.a"` To get the shared library. libACRONIS.dll The .7z on my USB drive seem to just be the header.h and library.a Not long after the 2018 state tourism conference opened in Tampa, some of the nation's top cannabis industry executives managed to work out a compromise to the state's proposed adult-use marijuana law. They found a way to make the industry feel like they were finally getting the number of grower/processor licenses that they'd been promised, especially in the cannabis-friendly Tampa Bay area. Last month, the state held a one-day conference to rally support for a law that would allow anyone age 21 and older to legally consume cannabis for recreational use. The industry was eager to get its name back into the Florida Tourism Office's 2018 agenda. Tourism officials say there was never any doubt that the industry would be one of the major topics of the conference, as cannabis has become one of the most talked-about topics in the world. Consumers are increasingly interested in marijuana in general and the cannabis industry in particular, according to tourism officials. The latest research suggests, for instance, that consumer interest in cannabis could generate more than $1.57 billion in 2018.
