it is a device to initialize the permission key of Microsoft Office. How to remove all drivers from the Windows folder, you can also read in this article. The process of uninstalling Windows drivers is more complicated than it might seem at first glance. Most operating systems allow you to do this manually, but some allow you to delete files through the system setup process (Windows Update). In this post, we will look at how to remove all drivers from the windows folder. In order to uninstall Windows drivers, you will need software, usually Windows XP, laptop, modem, keyboard, scanner, printer drivers. You will need at least Windows 7 or XP software. It is not necessary to delete files from the drive, make sure you are using the integrated device manager. It can be found in the C:\Program Files folder. Locate this file and select Defragmenter, click the Delete button. This program checks the device type and removes the drivers without a trace. If you want to delete all existing files, and they are marked as "Print Sheet", do the following in the registry: Right click on any of the drives you want to clean up. Select the "Move" command. Move the file to the window that appears. Click OK. How to make sure that the path to unnecessary folders is correct? If you delete all deleted files, your computer will look like normal. Be careful, as some types of files, such as shortcuts, may remain. This is not so bad, because some users still want to remove all shortcuts. How to remove a package file from a computer? Some folder files, eg shortcuts, archives (also known as xml), are not transferred to the C:\Posted folder, so they may remain on your system after deletion. Just double click on them and they will disappear. Uninstalling drivers using Windows Registry Create a new registry key DriverInfo, it should contain the following directories: Drivers C:\MSDN\Drivers\MS These files can also be found in the C:\Windows\System32, C:\Copy\DWPpackage, and C:\Type folders. They can contain information about the device in single, two or three word text. If you remove them from the above directories
