Career Born in Penderyn, North Wales, and schooled in Swansea, Stones became a natural on guitar and percussion, writing his own songs and often playing along to Bob Dylan records. After meeting with Andy Coghill, manager of the Sugarmill label and Mike Smith, a music publisher who had been responsible for a few albums, Stones's compositions were included on the Slimelight label in the UK. The label was issued by Don Gallardo's self-release Dub Records (Orange Vinyl, promo. only) in 1994. The NME reported in November 1995 that Stones "had a strange gregariousness about him and a casual good humor." He "exudes hippyish charm; one of those people who emanates so much personality that it's difficult not to talk to them. And this guy can rap as well as sing." Stones then worked with Joydip Vengsarkar and Mute Records and re
