I have a very simple router in my Rails app. class StaticPagesController Now this error usually occurs when I don't initialize the router in the constructor. So I added the following to the StaticPagesController constructor. def initialize super StaticPagesController.new.url_for(:action => :home) end It works fine. So I am curious if it is OK to start the router in the constructor? A: The routes are set up in the initializers/application.rb file in a staticpages_controller.rb file. So if you didn't call the initialize method, then it won't be setup. Follow You Tube: Follow Twitter: Find the Best Produce in Hawaii Today! It's time to get up and out.
