The last minute I've changed the master page and the Index.cshtml template. Now I'm getting the following error: HTTP Error 500.19

- Internal Server Error The requested page cannot be accessed because the related configuration data for the page is invalid.

Detail: ConnectionStrings AuthenticationProviders System.Web.Providers.DefaultMembershipProvider System.Web.Providers.DefaultRoleProvider DataSources DefaultDataSource The problem only seems to happen for Chrome, IE seems to work ok. What should I look at in order to troubleshoot this problem? A: This problem is caused by something known as inconsistent DOM programming. From the web page mentioned in your error message, this seems to occur when your web application server (e.g. IIS) requests the page which attempts to invoke some sort of JavaScript functionality. In the case of the web page I was experiencing this problem on, it turned out to be the fact that an image was loading dynamically, and from the Developer Tools in Chrome, I was able to discover the image was actually being loaded from an entirely different web page (of which there was no mention in the navigation). The solution is to ensure your web pages are fully self contained and the only request required to load them is the request to 3e33713323
