Autocad 2013. free download Autocad 2013.Q: Binding MaxAmplification of a PowerExpression for -0.2 I have a PowerExpression given, that i want to bind to the MaxAmplification. I have tried both BindingEqualityTarget and BindingEqualityTargetSuffix but I can't make it work. What I'm trying to accomplish is that whenever the expression is converted, I use the value of the MaxAmplification from the original PowerExpression. Any ideas?

A: What I ended up doing was using an auxiliary variable and setting it to a result of the conversion. This allows me to use the BindingEqualityTargetSuffix on the auxiliary variable and bind this to the MaxAmplification. If you have a more elegant solution or have a better understanding of Power. I'm open for suggestions. // create an auxiliary variable private PowerExpression variable; // change the power to be the original expression PowerExpression = parameter.PowerExpression; // create the new PowerExpression variable = new PowerExpression() { NumericOperator = (
