Q: dynamically add javascript to an XPage using the new element I am trying to add javascript to my XPage using the new element. When I do so, the xp:script block just appears as a string in my.js file, and is immediately followed by a semicolon. What am I doing wrong?
alert("test"); A: You don't need to use `xp:script`. You can add any javascript block in the body of your XPage, like this: `alert("test");` The important thing is to have a valid javascript statement, one with a semicolon at the end. So as you have, no semicolon. Q: javascript error in IE8 I am getting error like this for the code below. It worked fine before and it stopped working now. anyone know why? A script on this page may be busy, or it may have stopped responding. You can stop the script now, open the script in the debugger, or continue.
