If you'd prefer to use other applications, such as GIMP or Paint Shop Pro, try a tutorial or just get someone who has good instruction to teach you. Many users of Elements would benefit from a Retina display. The notebook display monitor has a 1366 x 768 resolution. But Elements is not yet ready for the retina display. Photoshop and Acrobat cannot use the features available on the retina display. If you have a MacBook Pro with the retina display, then you can use any other display and the problems will not occur. But if you get the Mac Pro with the retina display, then the image will appear pixelated and blurry. You are not the only person with this problem. We have created an alias for this issue. When you attach an image via FTP, it opens as a photograph. So this issue does not occur. Mac Pro with retina display Use CTRL+ALT+DEL and restart the computer to start the Elements 15.0. If this does not start, change a setting in the Power Options menu to change the Mac's default settings to hibernation. Elements 15 is incompatible with Mac OS X v10.12 'Sierra'. You can use the previous version, Adobe Photoshop Elements 14. All images have been tested to work with both Windows 8 and Mac OS X. Some users have reported that they can get Photoshop Elements or Photoshop to open folders via Finder, however, that will not work for the next few weeks. Using Photoshop Elements is a great tool for beginners. If you are using the Macintosh, then there is a problem with using Photoshop Elements. That is why there are tutorial videos to help you learn Photoshop Elements. Once a month a fresh image is hosted at a Docker registry and made available for those wishing to use a containerized web server stack on top of Fedora Core 18. The Fedora Image Spec provides guidelines on what must be included on a Fedora Core 18 image, and this month we've updated the spec to better cater to container users. The important aspects are listed below: Support for LXC: this month we're including LXC support out of the box, for those using LXC-enabled Docker installations. The HTTP server (nginx) supports basic out of the box configuration while other services are manually configured, see the full list of configuration information.
