It is intended for Windows users, who are willing to ease their workflows by having all relevant information together in one place. It doesn't come with powerful options or complicated settings, so novice users will be comfortable using it right away. TimeWatcher is an approachable piece of software that enables you create and manage time spent working on various tasks. It doesn't include complicated options or configuration properties, making it suitable for all types of users, even those less experienced with project management tools. Installer, requirements, and interface Setting up this program takes minimal time and effort, thanks to the fact that there are no unfamiliar options displayed in the wizard. However, it depends on.NET Framework, since it was built with the help of this platform. When it comes to the interface, TimeWatcher opts for a standard window with a neatly structured layout, where you can create as many tasks as you want, as well as specify the task duration. Create and manage multiple tasks Once a job is started, the program starts counting down, displaying the elapsed time. It's possible to stop tasks with one click, as well as to pause and resume them whenever you want to take breaks. The status bar reveals the number of total tasks, started and paused jobs, in addition to the last save time. Information can be refreshed with the click of a button, while the current progress can be saved to be able to exit the application and later launch it to pick up from where you left off. Evaluation and conclusion It left a small footprint on the system resources in our tests, thanks to the fact that it consumed a low amount of CPU and RAM. We haven't experienced any stability issues, as it didn't freeze, crash or prompt errors. TimeWatcher was stable throughout its entire runtime. On the other hand, the program doesn't come bundled

What's New in the TimeWatcher?

What does TimeWatcher do? TimeWatcher is an easy-to-use Windows application that will help you create and manage tasks and time estimates. Set up TimeWatcher is easy to install. After you have downloaded the program, you need to run the TimeWatcher setup.exe file. The setup process requires a few steps and asks for basic information such as the name of your profile, your computer's name, and the installation path. However, we recommend selecting custom installation and following instructions from the wizard. Installation is free, regardless of number of items you want to track. Interface TimeWatcher has a conventional interface, designed for both Windows XP and 7 users. The Window includes a tree with tasks. There is a daily, weekly, and monthly view of jobs. Also, the status bar displays the number of tasks, started and paused jobs, as well as the last save time. The program offers various metrics, such as the task duration and the remaining time. There are also buttons to pause and resume a task, as well as the ability to save the status. TimeWatcher's interface provides a clean look, and allows for a quick understanding of what it can do. It is fast and responsive in all respects. Use tools TimeWatcher can track any time spent on a task. In order to do that, you need to register the desired category of time - for example, design, development, testing, or others. Then you will be able to create and manage any time estimates. Furthermore, it is possible to pause, or stop a task. In that case, you will be notified about the number of extra tasks that you need to accomplish before you can resume your current job. The program includes the ability to save the progress of a task, as well as the last save time. TimeWatcher is a useful tool for anyone who needs a simple way to keep track of work done. There is no need to leave your PC to register a new task, since the program does all the work. Moreover, if you run into errors, it will be easy to fix them. The interface is simple and user-friendly. For all these reasons, we give it 5 stars. TimeWatcher Pricing Get your free download of TimeWatcher today.
