The F-15 Strike Eagle is the second iteration of the F-15 Eagle developed by Dassault. The Strike Eagle began development after the United States Government agreed to pay $2.5 billion to Airbus for the A-380 in 1995. The United States Air Force ordered a total of 44 single-seat F-15Cs (Block 35+), making it the most expensive fighter jet in history. It was the first fighter of its generation with improved aerodynamics and new avionics, including multiple sensor fusion and multimode radar. The Strike Eagle shares components with the F-16 Fighting Falcon. The F-15 Strike Eagle has very similar capabilities to the F-16 Fighting Falcon and Viper. It is the most expensive fighter ever made. We use professional 3D scanners and photogrammetry to achieve the highest level of details that we can provide. Combat Mission: Desert Storm II The F-15 was originally a fan design concept by a few designers to fill the role of both a general strike force fighter and air superiority fighter, until the F-15 project was eventually assigned to Dassault, and the F-15 entered into service in 1991, joining the F-16 and Mirage as Dassault's first combat aircraft to enter the market.
