4t Tray Minimizer

4t Tray Minimizer is an easy to use application that helps you get the system tray to its bare minimum size. Its purpose is to free up space on the taskbar or dash. Whether you are having a lot of applications running on it, or want to reduce the number of tabs on your browser tabs bar. You can do so by automatically minimize them into the tray, auto-hide them, keep a single instance of each window, or even roll it up. The program features a compact design with a clean layout. It also comes with a simple wizard with pre-selected settings, which offers support for window toolbar integration, enabling you to control the active panel and send it to the system tray easily. The main window even features buttons allowing you to roll up or down the current pane, make programs stay on top of other applications, or switch to a window transparent mode. Furthermore, you can access the configuration settings in the settings window. Version 2.3 of the program will now automatically hide all the frequently used apps, as well as system messages, that have been accessed by your PC within the last 30 minutes. If you select this option, the desktop tile will be affected, and all the programs you have recently used will be hidden. This new feature is meant to provide you with better control over the system tray, especially when you are monitoring the system in the background. The program is reasonably priced and comes in a nice windows installer package, which includes all the necessary files, in addition to the installation wizard. It will be available for download free of charge in our website, and you can get it here now. Software news from the world of technology. Subscribe to us!
