Category:Transport in North Rhine-Westphalia Category:Public transport in Germany Category:Transport in AachenRandomised, placebo-controlled study of extended-release venlafaxine in treatment-resistant depression. Despite the proven efficacy of venlafaxine (Effexor XR) in depressed patients, there is a paucity of data describing its efficacy in the treatment of resistant depression. To evaluate the efficacy of venlafaxine extended release (XR) in the treatment of treatment-resistant depression. One hundred and three patients with major depression, who did not respond to a non-responsive antidepressant monotherapy of at least 4 weeks' duration, were randomised to receive venlafaxine XR 75 mg/day (n=53) or placebo (n=50), and were treated for 6 weeks. The primary outcome measure was the change in scores on the Hamilton Rating Scale for Depression (HAM-D) from baseline to endpoint. Data were analysed using t tests and logistic regression. Analysis of variance models were used for the HAM-D, Montgomery-Asberg Depression Rating Scale (MADRS), Clinical Global Impression (CGI) of depression and MADRS response and remission. Non-responder imputation was used to impute missing data. Seventy per cent of the patients had at least partial response to the first trial. There was no statistically significant difference between active treatment and placebo on the HAM-D (p=0.19). The analysis of response and remission rates did not reach statistical significance. Nevertheless, venlafaxine XR had significant antidepressant and anxiolytic properties in refractory depressed patients. This result was neither confirmed for HAM-D (p=0.19) nor for MADRS response and remission (p=0.084 and p=0.062 respectively). Our results do not disprove the efficacy of venlafaxine for the treatment of resistant depression. ORANGE COUNTY (CBSLA.com) — Traffic on the 405 freeway in Orange County plunged nearly 60 percent this weekend due to the recent flooding, according to the California Highway Patrol. After scenes of chaos and roads closed, Los Angeles and Orange County area residents have been patiently waiting in traffic for more than a week. A traffic backup has started on the 5 Freeway at Mulholland Drive in the City of Los Angeles, according to the CHP.
