Authorities in North Carolina had an inkling Monday that a former Vanderbilt football player had been killed in a workplace accident before they charged his car with his death. The body of 20-year-old Camren Williams was found around 10 a.m. Monday at a construction site near his Old Hickory, Tenn., home. Williams, a defensive tackle who played for Vandy from 2011 to 2013, played professional football with the Los Angeles Chargers in the 2016 season. The team released a statement saying that it was "deeply saddened" by the news of his death. Williams' car was "involved in a collision" on Interstate 95 near Interstate 65 Monday said in a statement that Williams' car "totaled" a trailer operated by TLC EnviroVac, which had a trailer hit it. Berseman said that the collision occurred around 9:22 a.m., when the collision occurred. Berseman said that the truck was moving "slightly," but gave no details regarding speed, and there were no injuries.

Williams' family said Monday that they were shocked and saddened by the news. "Our family knows Camren would not hurt a fly," the family said in a statement. "We ask that you respect our privacy during this very difficult time." Williams, a native of Paintsville, Ky., played in three games for the Vanderbilt Commodores during the 2011 season. He was unable to attend the Commodores' season-opening game against Georgia Tech last year because of a "personal matter," according to a Vandy spokesman. The 6-foot-4, 295-pound Williams was regarded as a prospect by the NFL as a high schooler. He was rated the No.
10 defensive tackle in the country by 247Sports as a
