WISC-IV Guidelines for technical and interpretation. FIN-URA Interpretation Guide. Guidelines for use, assistance in evaluation and recommendations. Translation from English: Maxim Vekov Publisher : IFT USPASS Year of publication: 2014 ISBN 978-1-405-68204-8 Product code: 0414 Sales of this book: 162.54 Book reviews: 40 Quote: "The international code FIN was introduced in 1951 based on the

"CONFIDENTIAL" signal from the first observations by astronaut James Lovell, which included a report of lightning flying in the oceans over Antarctica. This signal, first appeared in 1931 and called "NIGHT OUT", began to be used by astronomers when observing celestial bodies, being outside the usual observing programs with telescopes, and thus began to be used to simplify the calculations that arise when calculating the trajectories of celestial bodies and their various phases, as well as when searching for certain types of celestial objects with purpose of their identification".
