ASUS Education believes in the vital importance of continual educational improvement. Our new ASUS Education suite is aimed at addressing this need. It offers PC game-based learning for students, with a wide range of complete games. They include learning games such as Super Mario Bros. 3 for Nintendo and Asteroids for Atari, as well as more complex games such as adventure classics like Simon the Sorcerer and Operation Flashpoint: Red River. In addition, ASUS Education allows users to take control of a racing simulation, such as Nascar Grand Prix 2003, and to adjust system parameters, such as resolution, and control the flow of time, and play the game at the ideal resolution, using the mouse and keyboard. Users can also make use of practice features to practice systems, hardware and software installation, and document management. What's new - This is the latest version of this program, which was formerly known as ASUS Home. - For students, the "Favorite Classes" feature is added, which allows them to take classes from the program in their own way, and at their own pace, using the K-12 curriculums.
