SP TimeSync

What's New In?

SP Time Sync is a simple software application that allows you to synchronize instantly your PC's clock with an internet atomic server (time server). NTP (high precision network time protocol) is used for an accuracy of a few milliseconds depending on the source and the path that the network uses. Quick and easy usage Setting your PC's time is very easy, you simply click "get time from server" and then "adjust clock". After this operation your clock will be synchronized with an atomic precision internet clock. The "settings" tab offers you several options such as: - windows start-up launch - tray icon window minimization - minimized window program start-up - IPv6 protocol available only for pro version From this location you can choose your language and the developers also allow users to translate the software application in their own language. The "time client" tab let's you personalize your NTP server, local port used and the synchronization period for the user's PC. Size and functionality The size for SP Time Sync is less than 100 Kb and the program creates windows and uses all memory and loader in dynamic libraries meaning only a short period of time the resources will be used, then all resources will be freed up speeding your PC. You can also use this program as a background task which will have minimal impact on your PC's performance. Network traffic will be very low because small payload data is used to adjust the time. The software application is great for people who run a precision business or simply require their clock to work with atomic precision. Conclusions SP Time Sync is a great program that can give you the required precision in your everyday life and activities and with the update function you can be sure you will never be out of sync when it comes to time.
