It is desirable to produce polymer particles, particularly particles of water soluble polymers, in the form of aqueous dispersion. The properties of such polymer particles can be improved by incorporating a liquid plasticizer within the particle matrix. However, usually polymer particles are produced containing a liquid plasticizer which tends to leach the same out of the particle matrix during storage. For example, when polymer particles of aqueous dispersions of polyethylene oxide are stored in the dry state, there is a tendency for 3e33713323
