What's New In FireFloo Communicator?

FireFloo Communicator is a robust and secure messaging application that aims to allow users to easily communicate over various messengers, instant messengers and regular email. The aim is to integrate the communication channels available to any user into one. All the major communication channels, including SMS, MMS, Skype, XMPP and email with a browser add-on. Send/Receive/Delete/Forward messages from the application. Use the new FireFloo tool, Rosetta, to encrypt/decrypt messages. BlackTalk is a free VoIP application that aims to provide a comfortable environment for free communication and connection. It is available for Windows, iOS and Android. Verdict The application offers IP phone and video calling. However, unlike most of the other VoIP applications, one is not required to maintain their own server. The only problem that BlackTalk faced is that it not easily accessible on the app stores. Its user interface is average and the details required to set up the app don't exactly come up as an option. BlackTalk is already available for free on the Google Play store. In keeping with Google's official motto of 'don't be evil', Google Chrome has always stuck with an impeccable definition of neutrality. We've always been an open-source-based browser that welcomes extensions from third-parties. The problem with most of these extensions is that they show ads of some sort or the other. With the Chrome extension adblocker, however, not only is the ads blocked but the same extension also adds a privacy policy to the extensions menu. The extension is available on the Google Web Store and therefore available to all users. Verdict If the extension is unable to control what ads it shows then perhaps it needs a rebranding! The concept of personalised home automation makes a lot of sense as it allows one to set preferences according to their tastes. At present, the automation mainly is reliant on web-based interfaces and for those interested in functioning systems there is only one application for it. Webcam viewer helps to view a live feed of whatever is being recorded. It also helps to view pre-recorded videos from a screen and also acts as a webcam viewer. It is quite simple and is based on a Java applet technology. Verdict Webcam viewer is an easy to use application and can be downloaded for free.Q
