Hey guys! I decided to make some Sidebar gadgets. No, I'm not joking. I originally wanted to make useful stuff like RSS Readers, Weather Centers, Blog Feeds, etc... but I found that since the Sidebar has to be in accordance with Windows 7 guidelines, I couldn't add them all the way to the Sidebar. So I just made some gadgets that would be placed in a separate window to add some of the items I missed. These gadgets can be customized but I've prepared the basic tutorial for you in the Read Me. So, who wants to make some Sidebar Gadgets for Vista? Cont... Packed With Power! Unpack Your Sidebar Under Windows Vista If you have ever visited someone's Sidebar then you know that it's basically a sort of Drop Down Menu where you can see what applications you have installed and what are currently running. Well, Vista brings you more than that. It allows you to see and launch apps, Control Panel, and even customize your desktop and start menu items right from your Sidebar. Also, with Vista, you can further customize your Sidebar through a settings menu window. You can add, edit, delete and remove items from the Sidebar to launch applications, tools, websites, and even shortcuts. So what are you waiting for? Let's unpack your Sidebar. Wha...
