Select and Mask tools allow you to select a portion of an image with just a click of the mouse. This is great for duplicating portions of an image or for cutting out parts of an image. Keyboard shortcuts allow you to perform actions quickly, saving you time and effort. For example, you can use the V key to lock the selected tool, but you can also lock a painting tool, or select a layer in an image. In addition to the built-in Photoshop tools, there are a ton of external tools (and plugins) available for you to purchase, allowing you to perform even more tasks and make your life easier. Photoshop is full of powerful features and tools. In this article, we will cover some of the most essential ones: 1. Brushes The Photoshop brushes are one of the most useful tools in the program. They allow you to paint on an image, brush up images, add special effects to your images, and a lot more. There are two main types of brushes in Photoshop: regular brushes, and specialty brushes. Regular brushes can apply a variety of effects or textures to an image, while specialty brushes can enhance an image by applying special effects such as highlights and shadows, or adding colors and textures. As it is one of the most useful features in Photoshop, we will cover a number of brushes here to help you make the best use of them. Regular Brushes Regular brushes can be found on the regular brush panel, which you can find in the bottom right corner of your Photoshop window. A number of brushes are already included with Photoshop, such as the Brush Tool or the Watercolor Brush. The default brush is the Oil Paint Brush, which you can use to apply a range of textures and textures to your image. You can also create your own brushes, which are essential for you to learn how to modify the Paintbrush tool to produce unique and meaningful textures. Brushes and the Brush panel are managed by the Settings and Options window, as shown below: Here, you will see different options for modifying the brushes, such as controlling how much the brush spreads, how much color is added to an image or a specific color, etc. We will look at these options later. Regular brushes are primarily made up of two parts: the paintbrush and the canvas. The paintbrush has two main attributes: the brush size and the opacity.

Student Educated on Social Media Content Drexel University students in the College of Arts and Sciences participated in the school's first social media education event on May 13, with a panel including representatives from the Philadelphia Inquirer, Dow Jones/U.S. News, Pulitzer Prize-winning columnist Thomas Friedman, and MSNBC. The panel discussion, titled "Social Media Is Not a Crime," was co-sponsored by the College of Arts and Sciences in partnership with the College of Communication and Center for the Study of Philanthropy. University officials said the experience drew a large turnout, with 12 students and five Penn professors in attendance. The six-hour event included speakers and panelists discussing issues surrounding social media and the media's relationship with the Internet. "Social media and media outlets have shaped our world in many important ways, as we live and work and learn each day," said longtime college faculty member Bob Schiffman, who moderated the event. "This discussion was designed to help all of us better understand the evolving landscape." Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences Robert H. Smith Jr. said the panel represented a highly productive effort. "Social media and journalistic issues have long been topics of significant interest to me and my colleagues in the College of Arts and Sciences," Smith said. "The collaboration between the Journalism, Health Sciences, and Design Interdepartmental Forum and the College of Arts and Sciences in hosting this event was extremely well received. "We are all in this together as we address the challenges and opportunities created by new media outlets." The panelists attended each other's class lectures and offered constructive feedback, said college Dean Arnold D. Hirsch. "This presentation was a valuable learning experience for all the participants," Hirsch said. "We came away with a better sense of our many challenges and opportunities, and were encouraged by their engagement and suggestions." Penn Professor of Journalism Mark Schreiber was invited to attend by the College of Arts and Sciences. "The ability to share thoughts and experience with peers, including those at other institutions in the world, is one of the cornerstones of the Penn faculty network," Schreiber said. "Social media education is a topic that is critical to the institution, and the College of Arts and Sciences and the Penn Law
