A: @ shows erroridentificationtoeflpdfdownload Url has text or HTML markup embedded in it. Erroridentificationtoeflpdfdownload You are just about to send this message to a team member. Erroridentificationtoeflpdfdownload This is interesting. Erroridentificationtoeflpdfdownload click erroridentificationtoeflpdfdownload . Erroridentificationtoeflpdfdownload I erroridentificationtoeflpdfdownload It looks like something could be filtered because of a marketing tactic. It should still be possible to remove the invalid content before the page gets cached by the browser. What you are describing looks like a valid email link but not the same: Erroridentificationtoeflpdfdownload With the URL encoded to %0D%0A%0D%0A Erroridentificationtoeflpdfdownload Also note the different style and that it is missing the percent signs. Example URL: url:pastebin.com/2yjkGx5B text: erroridentificationtoeflpdfdownload A: Problem: I received this error message in my inbox when trying to open a.pdf document from an email attachment. What I've found: The e-mail I was receiving was not just text, but also had embedded HTML code. Despite the document having an.pdf extension, there was no extension on the source document and the link directing me to it was in fact an HTML anchor. The HTML code was encoded in UTF-8. Solution: This is not the end of the world, but it could be exploited for spam purposes as these were free links to a malicious PDF document. So here are a few things you can do to prevent this from happening in the future: Make sure the PDF extension is present on the source document. Also make sure the extension is correct or at least, that it is in the most appropriate encoding for the type of document it is. The fact that the URL is encoded in UTF-8 probably means that the character encoding of the email
