As always, we'd like to thank all of our patrons for supporting us on Patreon. While we don't spend time on the comments, there are a lot of people who would really appreciate some form of "thank you" for the support. So, if you're inclined, please take a moment of your time to say thank you in the comments or by pledging. We'd appreciate it! If you prefer to not say thank you, we still love you. The fact that you're in our lives is a huge reason we do this stuff to be honest. Even if you don't say anything at all, we thank you for that! We love you! Anyway, since the page is in English by default, we have a single Italian translation if you prefer! We'd appreciate it if you'd use the "Italian" drop-down to change the language. Second in the series of Patreon-exclusive posts. This time it's about the background of the unique stats collected in the recent Updates. This is a mixture of stats and charts we've updated in the previous Updates, and quite a bit of new stuff. Some of the points I've made below refer to the changes in 11.7.4.0. To keep the new (for most people) display name of IP-koding, in older versions those stats were called "Website Name" and "IP koding." With the latest StatChange logs, we included stats we've collected from our Tor Hidden Service as well. The stats and charts are all hosted on the update page, which is One of the features added in the latest updates is a "reachability" function, where you can see how the koding of your account responds to a given range of IP addresses in the DNS. If you visit you'll see the reachability chart and stats. The comments in the details section will explain what the functions do. We added this feature as part of the 7.8.1 update. The design of the reachability chart, of course, is largely based on and inspired by the ones you'd

Pulmonary changes in heterozygous hypertrophic cardiomyopathy dogs. We analyzed the histopathological findings in normal lung and the pathologic pulmonary changes associated with the heterozygous form of hypertrophic cardiomyopathy in dogs. The pathological lungs were obtained postmortem from 12 dogs with a history of a 15-year-old Labrador retriever or a 3-year-old shorthair chi-chi dog. Seven of these dogs were affected with the heterozygous form of hypertrophic cardiomyopathy, and the other 5 were related normal healthy dogs. Dogs were categorized into the following groups: A, whose predominant lesion was fibrosis and/or alveolar wall fibrosis in the lungs; B, whose predominant lesion was intralobular fibrosis and/or interstitial pneumonia; C, whose predominant lesion was intraalveolar fibrosis; and D, whose predominant lesion was vascular disease. The extent of lesion was graded semiquantitatively from 0 to 5. A, B, and C could not be distinguished in group D, but the extent of vascular disease in group D (grades 1 and 2) differed from that in group A and B (grades 0 and 1). In general, fibrosis and/or alveolar wall fibrosis and intralobular fibrosis were clearly evident in group A, but vascular lesions were hardly seen in group A. The extent of fibrosis was seen in group B and D, and pulmonary vascular lesions were seen in group C and D. Intimal fibrosis was not as marked as interstitial fibrosis in group B and D. The extent of fibrosis and interstitial pneumonia was the same in group B and D./* * This file is part of GumTree. * * GumTree is free software: you can redistribute it and/or modify * it under the terms of the GNU Lesser General Public License as published by * the Free Software Foundation, either version 3 of the License, or * (at your option) any later version. * * GumTree is distributed in the hope that it will be useful, * but WITHOUT ANY WARRANTY; without even the implied warranty of * MERCHANTABILITY or FITNESS FOR A PARTICULAR PURPOSE.
