Q: Converting lat-longs to decimal? Just how do I convert lat longs to decimal? I understand this is an inappropriate question but it's the closest thing I could think of at the moment. A: You can divide the latitudes by 180, and the longitudes by 180*pi, or just write a simple method that does the job: public static double Lat2Decimal(double Lat) { return Lat/180.0 * M_PI; } For the longitudes, multiply by pi. You don't have to be cheesy and tell her you love her every second you are together. You can tell her how she looks and act in public, but not when you are alone. Relationships are long, and a good relationship is worth the wait. If you listen to her and care about her, you will probably get a great relationship. Also, when she says "I love you" you have to make sure you do the same. When a girl tells you that she loves you, you have two options. First, you can say the same back, which will express
