Republican legislators have released a study assessing the state of Wisconsin's transportation system that recommends both steps toward more fuel taxes and increased funding to fill a shortfall in the state's gas tax revenue. The report by the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance says the state needs to increase its gas tax, vehicle registration fees and other transportation fees. The report recommends an increase in the state's motor vehicle registration fee by $15 per vehicle and an increase in the gas tax by $1.50 per gallon of gas. The report did not recommend any specific amounts. The report also calls for a host of transportation infrastructure projects. This report should come as no surprise. For years, Republican lawmakers have resisted tax increases because they said they would hurt the economy. They even lashed out
