To celebrate the launch of “HyperMotion Technology”, EA will also include a power motion feature in FIFA 22. “Power Move” allows players to boost their player speed by sprinting at the end of a movement or dribble, enhancing the player’s acceleration and stopping/starting speed. FIFA 22 offers a new Boost Player feature where players can gain temporary boosts to their speed, acceleration, running and passing. Boost Player can be used by players to surprise the opposition, whether it is used to carry the ball to goal or by sprinting past a player. FIFA 22 also offers a new Targeted Boost feature, which is a less powerful version of Boost Player, designed to provide players with a brief speed boost when they approach a defender. FIFA 22 also introduces “Club Link,” a new feature allowing players to progress through their club’s development process all-in-one. After arriving at a new club, players can play in its Elite Training Camp, which introduces pre-match routines and team build-ups based on coaches’ suggestions. Players can then progress to the Pro Training Camp, where practice sessions are based around skills the player has learned from the Elite Training Camp. Finally, players can participate in matches where coaches are tailored to their skillset. “Club Link” also allows clubs to create personalised player instructions based on player attributes and team tactics. The 2017 FIFA Club World Cup will be held in the United Arab Emirates. FIFA 22 features three new Club World Cup settings: the 2017 Club World Cup Korea/Japan, 2017 Club World Cup Morocco and the FIFA Women’s World Cup France 2017. With FIFA 19, FIFA 19 Ultimate Team featured improved mechanics and a wide array of new cards that were exclusively available through in-game packs. This year, FIFA 19 introduced a built-in player feedback system, new expansions, a new free-to-play business model, and more. FIFA 19 will be available on Xbox One, PlayStation 4, Xbox 360, PlayStation 3, Nintendo Switch, Nintendo Wii U, Windows PC and macOS on August 24. View a trailer here.

We have seen many players complain how the new players in FIFA 18 are slow and not flying around the pitch! We are here to tell that this new feeling of FIFA 18 is not a glitch but as the developers have stated in their update, FIFA 18 has a new game engine. The FIFA 18 development team have explained how the game engine has been revamped to incorporate some of the feedback they have received from players on the previous game. In the last FIFA game, the developers of FIFA 17, no one can be blamed for the issues, but for FIFA 18, the blame goes to the fact it is now a different year and therefore a new engine had to be developed. "As we further investigate the issues, it appears that the new engine also has a significant effect on players' difficulty," FIFA's Chief Technical Officer, Patrice Evra, said. "Essentially, we are doubling down on the development of our engine, in order to create the best experience for FIFA 18 players and we are thankful to our community and the press for their feedback." The FIFA 18 engine is however still in the early stages, but with more time and money, FIFA 18 could be a better FIFA game. Releasing in June 2017, FIFA 19 is the latest edition of the popular soccer game franchise. In fact, as I was doing my research for this article, I discovered the existence of the upcoming FIFA 19 on the game's official website, too. I wonder if this is going to be the real ending for the disappointing FIFA 18. Career Mode FIFA 19 retains most of the elements which made the previous game popular, especially the career mode. It's still got inclusions of a national team, a monthly pay-per-play option, and the popularity of celebrity-voting social media sites
