Python: Taking multiple submissions with different time delays? I am fairly new to Python programming and I hope someone could help me out here. I am currently working on a code project which consists of a large number of images (around 1,500) of flowers and trees. I want to be able to take submissions of the plants with a different time delay. I know how to do it using an integer for the time delay like this: `import time` `import Image` `image = Image.open('file.jpg')` `time_delay = int(raw_input())` `new_image = image.resize((300, 300), Image.ANTIALIAS)` `for i in range(time_delay):` `new_image.putdata(0, i, image.getpixel((0,0)))` `new_image.save('new_image.jpg')` This works, but to make it fair, I need the submission time delay to be randomised. I have a way of finding the average time the first time I run the program, but how can I implement something like it into an infinite loop?

A: generate random number of seconds and store it in a list `randomize time delays` `import random` `import time` `time_delays = []` `for i in range(len(time_delays)):` `time_delays.append(random.randint(0, 10))` filling up `time_delays` will allow you to randomize the filling up of the time intervals. Q: How to separate data in DataGridView?

I want to separate data in DataGridView using SQL Query `DataGridView1.AllowUserToAddRows = false;` `var query = "SELECT * FROM student where a=@s";` `SqlDataAdapter adp = new SqlDataAdapter(query, conn);` `DataSet ds = new DataSet();` `adp.Fill(ds);` `DataGridView1.DataSource = ds` `dataGridView1.DataSource = d` `1cdb3666d`
