Chondroitin sulphate receptor 2: a multifunctional, recycling, endosomal and plasma membrane-associated receptor. The chondroitin sulphate (CS) receptors are a family of multiligand cell surface receptors that bind CS and chondroitin sulfate proteoglycans with high specificity. They have been identified on cells of myeloid lineage, the vascular system and the central nervous system. These receptors are involved in the regulation of a variety of biological processes such as cell proliferation, cell adhesion, cell activation, phagocytosis, chemotaxis, migration, and invasion. The CS receptors have a modular structure involving an N-terminal non-cytoplasmic domain (ectodomain), a single transmembrane domain, and a cytoplasmic C-terminal domain that contains several motifs including phosphotyrosine-binding and proline-rich domains. Binding of CS induces activation of intracellular signalling pathways that results in phosphorylation, internalization, and recycling of the receptor back to the cell surface. The CS
