The Gradient Tool is a very powerful tool for designing and coloring images. There are two types of gradients: linear and radial. The Brush Tool, also known as the Paint Brush, allows you to apply paint, ink, or paste-like materials to objects in your photo. The Pen Tool can be used for a variety of effects, including texture and pattern creation and segmentation. There are four type of pens: classic, path, polygon, and shape. Integration of networks of chemical sensors to measure multiple chemical constituents simultaneously. Chemical sensing is an essential element in food processing. This paper describes the design of an electronic sensor with two different types of sensing cells. The sensing element is a membrane-based semiquantitative sensor constructed from a layered composite of poly(vinyl acetate), activated carbon, chitosan, and triazene perchlorate. By combining standard sensors that are selective for individual constituents of food, the electronic sensor can effectively measure multiple chemical constituents simultaneously and can be tailored to measure multiple constituents of interest during food processing. To demonstrate the design concept, measurements of thiamine (vitamin B1), riboflavin (vitamin B2), and biotin are presented. Sensor construction and performance characteristics, including the resolution, are described in detail.
