Using the full Photoshop CS6 trial If you'd rather not purchase Photoshop outright, you can use Photoshop as a _trial version_ for 30 days. You can download the trial version from the `.psd` file you receive from Adobe. To start the trial, launch Photoshop, create a new document, and open the file you just downloaded. When you close the file, you see a dialog that asks whether you want to make a purchase. (See Figure 3-1.) FIGURE 3-1: You can try Photoshop for 30 days.

Q: Order by property nullable I have this entity : public class A { public string PropertyOne { get; set; } public string PropertyTwo { get; set; } } I want to be able to order a List in this way : { "PropertyOne", null, "PropertyTwo" } Now I can't do it using an IComparer because it will order the first property as null to be first and then to have an order on the second property, which should be nullable. I can't do it using a nullable Property because it's a A entity that can have two properties. Do you guys know a way to do it? Thank you A: Instead of having a class like public class A { public string PropertyOne { get; set; } public string PropertyTwo { get; set; } } have a class like this: public class A { public string PropertyOne { get; set; } public string? PropertyTwo { get; set; } } now you can order by PropertyOne and if it is null or not, you will get nullable for PropertyTwo. You will lose the idea of reusing the existing class A as your entities can have different setters. Q: Is it possible to have multiple use-cases with @Named annotation in Spring? Is it possible to annotate a use-case with @Named while it implements multiple interfaces? For example, I have the following codes: @Component @Named("userRegistration") public class UserRegistration { ... @Component @Named("userActions") public class UserActions { ... @Named("userController") public class UserController { ... And my problem is that I need to have a controller such as UserController to invoke UserActions. So the controller should have @Named("userActions") annotated as well. Otherwise, I would have to change my design because @Named annotation only annotates one component. But I need multiple controllers. Note that I do have no use of the services, because I will always have a controller. I have to
