(Getty Images) IN OTHER NEWS: New Yorkers spent the day ignoring Hurricane Sandy's approach, as mayor Bloomberg braced for the "biggest test" of his administration. The streets were undisturbed, shops were open and people sipped coffee on buses and subway cars. But it would be wise to heed warnings from the National Weather Service. Sandy was expected to make landfall Wednesday as a Category 1 hurricane with sustained winds up to 80 mph and is forecast to hit landfall Wednesday night. ADVERTISEMENT Bloomberg said that if Sandy did make landfall, "it will be our greatest challenge." Bloomberg said early Wednesday evening that the city had relieved all but five of its emergency workers. The
